

The North Face 100® Hong Kong

TNF 100 and TNF 50 Hong Kong Route Descriptions:

Both the 50 km and 100 km races start at 8 AM on Saturday, December 16th inside the Tai Mei Tuk car park in the Northern New Territories of Hong Kong SAR. Baggage check will take place by the Bradbury Camp Youth Hostel. Race assembly will take place on the bicycle path near Bradbury Camp.

TNF 100 and TNF 50 Section 1: Tai Mei Tuk/Pat Sing Leng Nature Trail/Wu Kau Tang

Approximate distance ~ 6.6 km
Total elevation gain ~ 400 meters
Total elevation loss ~ 315 meters

Racers will run out the bicycle path and turn right onto Bride's Pool Road for approximately 1 km. The course turns left by the AFCD/Plover Cove Visitor Center and onto Pat Sing Leng Nature Trail. The course continues along a footpath approximately 1.5 meters wide and gains altitude steadily. There are occasional breaks in the forest that afford views to the right of Plover Cove Reservoir. After attaining a height of land at about 300 meters, the path descends to an intersection where the Wilson Trail splits off to the left and racers continue on the Pat Sin Leng Nature Trail to the right. Following a descent, a stream crossing, a short climb and steeper descent on stone stairs, the course arrives at Bride's Pool Road.

Although the race organizer and the police will manage traffic control, racers should cross the road with caution. The road is also popular with cyclists who tend to disregard instructions to give way to runners crossing the road.

Passing under a wooden sign, the course descends some stairs, crosses a small bridge, veers to the right across a small, open grassy area, and then descends a series of stone steps. At the bottom, the course crosses a bridge and turns left and up toward Wu Kau Tang. The checkpoint is located on the trail beside a stream next to a bridge. Toilets are available across the bridge in the adjacent parking lot.

TNF 100 and TNF 50 Section 2: Wu Kau Tang/Plover Cove Reservoir/Ha Miu Tin/Wu Kau Tang

Approximate distance ~ 8.1 km
Elevation gain ~ 505 meters
Elevation loss ~ 505 meters

From the checkpoint, the course route turns immediately up to the right onto the Plover Cove Reservoir Country Trail. A steep climb leads to a beautiful ridge with views of Plover Cove Reservoir, seasonal waterfalls and various mountain vistas. The next section of the trail is punctuated by numerous short, steep up and downs with altitude changes of between 50 to 100 meters. Wang Leng Tau (311 meters) is the highest point. Parts of the path are quite rocky; other parts include soft dirt through small forests. Ignore the sign-posted left hand turn off the ridge after marker post 2606; rather continue past marker post 2608 and then take the following left hand turn at the next wooden sign post. The course descends gradually over a rocky, and in places heavily rutted, path. One switch back in the trail affords an exceptionally beautiful view of Double Have and Yan Chau Tong Marine Park. At the next intersection, the course turns to the left past the abandoned village of Ha Miu Tin and out onto a major trail. The course turns left toward Wu Kau Tang and includes a couple of stream crossings and a short climb before turning into a concrete path for the final kilometer plus into the village of Wu Kau Tang. Checkpoint 2 is located at a farm house in Wu Kau Tang.

TNF 100 and TNF 50 Section 3: Wu Kau Tang/Lai Chi Wo/So Lo Pun/Yung Shue Au/Kuk Po/Luk Keng.

Approximate distance	~ 13.5 km
Elevation gain	~ 650 meters
Elevation loss	~ 735 meters

The cut off for starting this section of the trail is 1200 on December 16.

The route follows the Wu Kau Tang Country Trail up hill for a bit over one kilometer then heads toward Fan Shui Au. At one point there is a stunning view to the right of the islands in Yan Chau Tong Marine Park. From Fan Shui Au the route descends the obvious trail to the historical village Lai Chi Wo. From here, the trail turns left and north along the coast, following the King of the Hills Taipo Mountain Marathon route. There is a short climb at Shan O before descending to So Lo Pun, followed by another climb and descent to the abandoned village of Yung Shue Au. Another short climb leads to a brilliant trail along the side of the hill above Starling Inlet with views across the water to China. The trail descends to the water's edge at the living village of Kuk Po and becomes a concrete path by the side of the water for the last 3 km past Fung Hang and over two small hills before arriving at a restaurant and then the main road. Checkpoint 3 is located at the gazebo on the main road just before, and on the other side of the road from, the Luk Keng minibus stop.

Race participants would potentially be able to purchase additional refreshments at stores in Lai Chi Wo, Kuk Po, Fung Hang and Luk Keng should they require, though these shops are open at the whim of the local inhabitants. There will likely be one intermediate timing point at an undisclosed location along the course to insure that no short cutting takes place.

TNF 100 and TNF 50 Section 4: Luk Keng/Nam Chung Country Trail/Tan Chuk Hang/Hok Tau.

Approximate distance	~ 9.5 km
Elevation gain	~ 590 meters
Elevation loss	~ 550 meters

The cut off for starting this section of the trail is 1500 on December 16.

The course route crosses Bride's Pool Road in front of the Luk Keng village noodle shops and bus stop. The course heads immediately away from the road toward Luk Keng Lam Uk, but turns right and down to the Nam Chung River to Nam Chung Country Road before starting up the Nam Chung Country Trail. The course follows the Nam Chung Country Trail all the way to Tan Chuk Hang. The first section of the trail features a couple of switchbacks and a gradual ascent to a river crossing, followed by a section along the edge of the river that alternates between short, steep climbs and flattish sections. Several small waterfalls are visible along the way on the runner's right. After crossing the river to the right again, the climb becomes steeper and more consistent. Following the high point near marker 2505 (~440 meters), the trail descends to Ping Teng Au, a lovely open meadow surrounded by mountains, including, above to the left, the final section of the race course. Staying on the Nam Chung Country Trail, runners head toward Tan Chuk Hang via a 1.5 km continual descent. After passing along the houses of Tan Chuk Hang, the route joins the Hok Tau Country Trail in the reverse direction of the sign posting. The next 1 km is a deceptively tough roller coaster section with a final descent to Hok Tau barbecue site and Checkpoint 4.

The 50 km and 100 km routes diverge at Hok Tau with the 50 km route returning to Tai Mei Tuk and the 100 km route continuing on an extended journey around the New Territories. The 50 km route is described first.

The cutoff time for continuing on the 100 km course is 1800. 100 km race participants may at their choosing switch to the 50 km race if they wish to continue after 1800. The cut off for continuing on the 50 km course is 1900.

TNF 50 Section 5: Hok Tau/ Hok Tau Reservoir/ Ping Fung Shan, Pat Sin Leng/Tai Mei Tuk.

Approximate distance ~ 12.1 km
Elevation gain ~ 930 meters
Elevation loss ~ 970 meters

The cut off time for starting this section of the race is 1900 on December 16.

The route follows Hok Tau Road past the barrier gate to Hok Tau Reservoir and goes clockwise around the reservoir onto the Wilson Trail. A left hand turn at a sign board begins steep climb that leads to Ping Fung Shan, and up to just below Wong Leng (639 meters), the highest point on the 50 km course. Some beautiful ridge running leads to Shun Yeung Fung (590 meters), and the start of the "8 Immortals" a bumpy section of small hills on the ridge called the Pat Sin Leng. Along the ridge views to the right include the ocean and the large, new Goddess of Mercy statue. After descending steeply from the last of the 8 Immortals, the trail turns right on Pat Sin Leng Nature Trail to repeat a couple of km of the first section of the race in reverse down to Plover Cove Country Park Visitor Centre. After crossing Bride's Pool Road, the route continues along Mei Wu Road for a few hundred meters and then turns right down a driveway, past a holiday camp, through a scrappy bit of forest and onto the Tai Mei Tuk Family Walk to the finish at Tai Mei Tuk.

Beverages and a warm meal will be served at the barbecue site and racers will have access to hot showers at the HKFYG facility.

TNF 100 Section 5: Hok Tau/Lau Shui Heung Country Trail/Kat Tsai Shan Au/Lung Shan/Fan Ling.

Approximate distance ~ 9.25 km
Elevation gain ~ 580 meters
Elevation loss ~ 615 meters

The cut off for beginning this section of the course is 1800 on December 16.

The route follows the Lau Shui Heung Park Road up hill past a barrier gate and past Lau Shui Heung Reservoir. The route then turns left uphill on the Lau Shui Heung Country Trail in the sign posted direction. A moderate climb and an undulating ridge section that overlaps with the Wilson Trail leads to a gazebo, a sign board and an intersection with a rough concrete track just before marker 2204. The route turns right down hill on the concrete track for just over 1.5 to a four-way intersection Kat Tsai Shan Au where there is also a sign board. Do NOT take the sharp right turn down the path on the Lau Shui Heung Country Trail. Instead, the route bears less sharply to the right and continues up an old and partially overgrown road toward Lung Shan (Dragon Hill). Part way up, the route turns left on a less well defined hiking trail to the top of Lung Shan (370 meters). There is a short ridgeline at the top of Lung Shan with a few ditches in the ground along the trail that deserve runner's caution. The route then descends steeply along the west side of Lung Shan, passing under a power pylon. There are a couple of trail splits along the way and the correct choice is always the left hand path in order to descend to a service reservoir. Passing around the outside of the service reservoir fence leads to a concrete road down past a barrier gate and then past the village of Tang Hang. This village has a good size population and lots of vehicles so runners should stay on the sidewalks where possible. The village road eventually terminates at a busy main road called Jockey Club Road. The route turns left on Jockey Club Road and follows a pedestrian and bicycle path across a bridge over the Fan Ling Highway and MTR railway line to Wo Hop Shek Village, then (all via bicycle and pedestrian path) to a small park on Pak Wo Road (by Fanling MTR station) without having to cross any roads or come into contact with motor vehicles.

Checkpoint 5 is located here.

TNF 100 Section 6: Fan Ling/Kei Lak Tsai/Pak Tai To Yan/Tai To Yan/Lam Kam Road/Ng Tung Chai. ~9.2 km

Approximate distance ~ 8.7 km
Elevation gain ~ 750 meters
Elevation loss ~ 680 meters

The cut off for starting this section of the course is 2030.

The route goes immediately up the paved Wu Tip Shan trail, eventually becoming a dirt trail. The trail turns left to Kei Lak Tsai (256 meters) and then left again to Pak Tai To Yan (506 meters) before following the beautiful ridge to Tai To Yan (566 meters). The climb to Pak Tai To Yan is fairly demanding, but the subsequent ridge line section is ample reward. This is one of the most beautiful sections of trail in Hong Kong with views to Tai Mo Shan on one side and Kai Kung Leng and on to China on the other side. Near the top of Tai To Yan there are a few sections of chain link fence on the side of the trail as the ridge is quite steep and narrow here. The descent from Tai To Yan is rolling at first, but finishes with a steep section on stone stairs.

Turn left upon coming out to the main road and run on the sidewalk to the bottom of the hill to a bus stop where you can carefully cross Lam Kam Road (This is the most heavily trafficked road crossing of the race and runners should follow race marshal instructions before crossing.) and up Ng Tung Chai Road for about 100 meters to Checkpoint 6 which is at the pavilion the left side of Ng Tung Chai Road.

TNF 100 Section 7: Ng Tung Chai Village/Tai Mo Shan Forest Track/Tai Mo Shan Barrier Gate.

Approximate distance	~ 8.75 km
Elevation gain	~ 915 meters
Elevation loss	~ 350 meters

The cut off time for starting this section of the course is 2300.

Nighttime temperatures on the high points of this section of the course frequently fall below 10 degrees this time of year and the wind chill can make it feel much colder.

The road to Ng Tung Chai Village (village shops may or may not be open) ascends gradually before becoming a paved trail to Man Tak Garden. After that it becomes a hiking trail. After crossing a stream on a bridge, there is a wooden sign board. Do NOT take the trail to the left toward the waterfalls, but rather take the right hand trail that ascends steeply and consistently toward Tai Mo Shan. At the next sign board, the waterfall trail reconnects with the main trail and after a steep section enters a very pretty treeless stretch with obvious terracing from bygone days. The route joins the Tai Mo Shan Forest Track at a gazebo between Maclehorse markers #143 and #144. Turning right, the route then follows the Maclehorse Trail on a concrete road over Tai Mo Shan and down to the barrier gate just after Maclehorse marker #152. Maclehorse marker 147 by the entrance to the Tai Mo Shan summit station is the highest point on the 100 km course and the nearby summit of Tai Mo Shan (957 meters) is the highest point in Hong Kong. Runners get their first views here to Kowloon, Hong Kong Harbor and Hong Kong Island to the south. On the descent from Tai Mo Shan, runners are expected to stay on the road and not take any of the short cuts that cut off the switchbacks on the road. Taking of any of the short cuts would be grounds for disqualification from the race. You will eventually pass through a barrier gate with a guard house on your left. Turn immediately left here down a concrete road for about 500 meters into Sze Lok Yuen Youth Hostel where Checkpoint 7 is located.

TNF 100 Section 8: Tai Mo Shan Road/Lung Mun Trail/Lead Mine Pass/Yuen Tun Ha

Approximate distance	~ 14.1 km
Elevation gain	~ 440 meters
Elevation loss	~ 1000 meters

The cut off for starting this section of the course is 0130 on December 17.

Follow the signs out the backside of Sze Lok Yuen Youth Hostel to an intersection that you run straight through on a contour trail. A steep descent to the right leads eventually to concrete stairs by a graveyard and out onto the Chuen Lung Forest Track before joining the Lung Mun Country Trail. Just before Lung Mun Country Trail marker

#3408 the course turns left and climbs to join a long contour trail through Shing Mun Country Park, including passing through a lovely bamboo tunnel, before joining the Maclehose trail briefly near marker #138 and descending to Lead Mine Pass. The course then turn left by the gazebo and toilets onto the Wilson Trail and continues north and down hill before joining a road (runners turn left) for a few hundred meters down to Yuen Tun Ha. This section of the course is not particularly steep, but does involve a fair bit of undulation through forested areas and numerous river crossings. There are bridges for some of the river crossings - but not all - and there is a fair likelihood of runners getting their shoes wet, particularly in the dark.

Checkpoint 8 is located in the concrete structure on an island in the middle of the road.

TNF 100 Section 9: Yuen Tun/Pan Chun Yuen, Taipo/Cloudy Hill/Sho Lo Tung.

Approximate distance	~ 10.3 km
Elevation gain	~ 690 meters
Elevation loss	~ 610 meters

The cut off for starting this section of the course is 0430 on December 17.

This section of the course follows Section 8 of the Wilson Trail exactly until the top of Cloudy Hill (Kau Lung Hung Shan). After an uninspiring 1 km downhill on the road past San Ok Ka village, the route takes a 90 degree angle left turn by a poorly placed information board at Wilson Trail marker W090. The pavement gives way to a nice trail shortly after that and runners continue on a forest trail with an uphill bias. This trail continues for a couple of kilometers, but then comes out onto a road again and after a bit of undulation begins to descend near Pun Chun Yuen village. Thought a country road, it can be a bit busy depending upon the time of day and runners will need to be alert to traffic. The trail passes underneath a highway and eventually becomes a nicer series of paved footpaths through Kam Shek New Village, out to the Lam Tsuen River and then left along the Lam Tsuen River with a bridge crossing to the other side and then continuing in the same direction. The course takes a right turn away from the river in Tai Po Tan Shui Wai Village and heads for an underground passage beneath the railway line. Runners encounter the only traffic signal on the course shortly before the tunnel underneath the railway. Unless otherwise directed by police on the spot, runners should obey all road traffic rules. After passing underneath the railway, a path beside a sports ground leads to Ying Pun Ha village where steps begin the climb of Cloudy Hill. The climb follows a long and gradually ascending ridge with several short descents along the way. Much of the way consists of paved steps and some sections are quite consistently steep. Approaching the summit, runners turn right and then bear along the fence to the left of the summit station (440 meters). Runners then turn sharply right (leaving the Wilson Trail which goes to the left) on the King of the Hills Taipo Mountain Marathon Trail down a steep set of stone steps for about 1.3 km toward Sho Lo Tung.

Checkpoint 9 is located 50 meters to the right of the trailhead in a car park with a concrete shelter.

TNF 100 Section 10: Sho Lo Tung/Hok Tau/Ping Fung Shan/Pat Sin Leng/Pat Sin Leng Nature Trail.

Approximate distance	~ 11.6 km
Elevation gain	~ 810 meters
Elevation loss	~ 940 meters

The cut off for starting this section of the course is 0700 on December 17.

The course follows the King of the Hill Taipo route toward historic Sho Lo Tung Cheung UK Village, turning right at a wooden sign just before entering the village. After a few hundred meters the course turns left at another wooden sign and soon crosses a river. After a short and undulating bit of forest trail the route takes a sharp right turn downhill at the next wooden sign. After crossing another bridge the trail climbs some stairs. Runners should look shortly after the stairs for a right turn on a less well defined path up past a picnic area and out onto a stone step trail. Turning right onto the stone step trail, runners have now rejoined the last section of the TNF 50 race course (also the Wilson Trail). A left hand turn by a sign board begins a steep climb that leads to Ping Fung Shan, and up to just below Wong Leng (639 meters), the second highest point on the 100 km course. Some beautiful ridge running leads to Shun Yeung Fung (590 meters), and the start of the “8 Immortals” a bumpy section of small hills on the ridge called the Pat Sin Leng. Along the ridge views to the right include the ocean and the large, new Goddess of Mercy statue. After descending steeply from the last of the 8 Immortals, the trail turns right on Pat Sin Leng Nature Trail to repeat a couple of km of the first section of the race in reverse down to Plover Cove Country Park Visitor Centre. After crossing Bride’s Pool Road, the route continues along Mei Wu Road for a few hundred meters and then turns right down a driveway, past a holiday camp, through a scrappy bit of forest and onto the Tai Mei Tuk Family Walk to the finish at Tai Mei Tuk.

Beverages and a warm meal will be served at The Hong Kong Federation of Youth Groups Tai Mei Tuk Outdoor Activities Centre.
